
NEW MODELS OF COLLABORATION WITH FER

Ericsson Nikola Tesla with its leading position in Croatia's economy has a real impact to better quality of human life, more efficient business operations and improvements of the society as a whole. With that, the company is active in actual promoting of the society of knowledge and sustainable development.

It is almost 50 years since the company has established a successful collaboration in scientific research, development and education with the Faculty of Electrical Engineering and Computing Science (FER), of the University of Zagreb. With the new agreement on collaboration we wish to intensify the collaboration and to implement new business models. This will encourage the two-way efforts towards:

- Joint investments into scientific and research projects in ICT area;
- Definition of technological guidelines and possible technology transfer;
- Improvement of education through the invited and regular lectures of mutual interest;
- Introduction the aggressive dynamics and joint participation in the European and world scientific research area.

The initial phase of the Project value is estimated to HRK 1.2 million.
